$50,000 GIVEN KIDNAPERS FOR ROSS' RELEASE

Payment Handled Entirely by Family on "Definite Proof" of Right Contact.

RETURN DEADLINE PASSES

Officers Announce Developments; Money Issued in $5, $10 $20 Denominations.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO Oct. 19—D. M. Ladd ... federal bureau of investigation announced today the family of ... S Ross, retired greeting ... manufacturer, had paid ... ransom for Ross' return.

... statement said his department could give no information ... the details of the payment "was handled entirely ... family upon what they believed ... definite proof they were in contact with the kidnapers."

... was kidnaped 24 days ago ... and ... m today the deadline ... Ross for word from the abductors she had received no word from them.

No Part In Payment

"We of course could not be a party to the payment of a ransom in a kidnaping case," Ladd's statement said "and necessarily same was handled by the family. As we are advised the family upon payment of the money waited for a reasonable period of time beyond the time the kidnapers indicated they would release Mr. Ross and then made a final appeal to the kidnapers for the release of Mr. Ross as was received by the various papers Sunday afternoon Oct. 17."

Ladd said the payment was made in bills of $5, $10 and $20 denominations.

"We, of course, desire the papers give us wide publicity as possible to these lists (of serial numbers of the bills) which have been distributed to the usual sources and that you indicate to the public that it is the desire of the federal bureau of investigation that the public be on the alert for the appearance of these bills either as now in their possession or as subsequently may be received by them."

Issued After Deadline

The statement was issued less than two hours after the deadline set by Mrs. Ross for receiving word from the snatchers was passed. Crime fighting agencies had entered the case to carry out the wife's demand for "a vigorous effort to locate and punish those responsible."

The list of ransom bills showed $15,000 was paid in $20's, $25,000 in $10's and $10,000 in $5's.

Ross 72 and in ill health, was seized from his automobile by three men on a highway 15 miles west of here as he returned from a tavern where he had dined with a former woman secretary.

New Roosevelt Figure Boosts Federal Deficit

Major Unexplained Drop in Revenues Accounts for Widened Breach in Treasury Accounts; President Stresses Plans To Cut Spending.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—A big, unexplained drop in estimated revenue has postponed until next year, at least, the long-sought goal of a balanced federal budget.

President Roosevelt, in a revised budget statement, estimated at $695,245,000 the net deficit for the fiscal year ending next June 30. Inclusion of debt retirement, he said, creates a gross deficit $200,000,000 higher.

Despite the backslide since January, a gross deficit of $895,245,000 would be less than for any fiscal year since 1930. Last year's gross deficit of $2,811,318,310 was the smallest since 1931.

Net Gross Differentiated

The President carefully noted the difference between net and gross deficits in his statement. He said the estimated net deficit was $2,012,000,000 less than the net deficit for last year.

He also reemphasized his announced determination to retrench. He said no further commitments would be made by two agencies which in days gone by have utilized billions—the Reconstruction Finance Corp. and the public works administration.

The state attitude was voiced by the President in a speech last night starting the annual community chest drives. Discussing the need for curtailed relief spending, he said:

"Unless federal taxes are to be greatly increased, the expenditures have to be brought within the existing tax receipts."

This statement, together with the budget figures, again raised discussion of possible tax increases despite recent administration assurances there would be none.

Not Revenue Drop

Members of congress gathering for their special session next month were especially concerned with this phase. They noted that the chief cause given for the upward revision of the estimated deficit was a drop in expected revenues.

Last January, the President estimated this year's tax receipts at $7,293,000,000. Yesterday he estimated them at $6,650,000,000, a drop of $643,000,000.

He made no attempt to explain the differences except to say it was "more than accounted for by the reduction in the estimate of income and social security taxes."

Noting that these two items are primarily dependent on business conditions, some tax authorities blamed the lowered estimates on the stock market drop and evidences of lessened industrial activity in some fields.

The President's budget statement was primarily a factual comparison of the revised budget with the figures he submitted to congress in April and with last year's budget.

Cites Expenditures

He explained that the prospective deficit had jumped from $418,000,000 in April to a net of $695,000,000 because of increased expenditures voted by congress, since that time and because of a drop in the estimated revenue since then of $256,000,000.

He noted increased expenditures of $344,000,000, but balbalanced against them "savings under other items" of $323,000,000. The savings were listed as $115,000,000 from a reexamination of the old age reserve fund, and economies of $208,000,000 "effected by administrative action in curtailing other classes of expenditures."

He listed specifically these unpredictable expenditures as having arisen since the April estimate. Increases under the new railroad retirement act, continuation of reduced interest rates on federal land bank loans, unemployment tax refunds under the

PENSION ITEMS PUT IN BUDGET

Action Taken After Attorneys Threaten To Bring Mandamus Suits.

WOULD FORCE INCLUSION

Mayor Says Move Is Not Retreat in Effort To Abolish System.

City council, at a special meeting last night, voted to add items in the 1938 municipal budget calling for funds to pay firemen's and policemen's pensions in the event the state supreme court rules in favor of the pensioners.

The budget, as revised, asks up to three-tenths of a mill for the firemen's pensions and a like amount for policemen's pensions.

The action was taken after City Solicitor Ralph E. Carhart told council attorneys for the pension beneficiaries had threatened to file a mandamus action in common pleas court to compel the city to include provision for pensions in the budget. The solicitor said he had studied the law and felt confident the city could be compelled to include the items.

No Disadvantage

Since the money sought for pensions could be transferred to the city general fund in the event the city wins the suit now in litigation over council's right to abolish the pension systems, the city is placed at no disadvantage in including the items in the budget, he said.

Mayor Smith, addressing council before the addition to the budget was made, emphasized that "the public should not infer we have yielded one iota in our objections to the pension system or our determination to abolish it. We are doing this because we feel the law forces us to do it."

The state law under which the pension systems were operated here in the past require a levy of up to three-tenths of a mill on the city duplicate for pension purposes. City Clerk Harry Brookshire said the levy for each department would yield up to approximately $9,600 for each department's pension needs in the event the supreme court should hold council had no authority to abolish the pensions.

It is expected the budget commission will be asked to allow the

SIX PERISH AS FIRE SWEEPS FARM HOME

Neighbor Finds Two-Story Building Aflame As Occupants Sleep.

By The Associated Press

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 19—Six persons perished early today as flames swept a two-story frame farm house near Waterford, 10 miles south of Erie.

Dr. W. G. Stroble, coroner, said he could see five of the bodies in the smouldering ruins at daylight, and that efforts would be made to remove them as soon as the ruins cooled.

Stroble said the victims were Mrs. Helen Molash, 52; her three sons, Abe, 23; Peter, 21, and John, 19; a daughter, Olga, 17, and a hired man, Harry Orcholl, 50.

Stroble said the fire was discovered by Ted Malinoski, a neighbor, shortly after 3 a. m. Malinoski told him, the coroner said, that he saw flames shooting out of the attic windows, and that he broke open the front door of the home to find the interior filled with flames.

The family, according to Malinoski, slept on the second floor, and was believed trapped there.

Stroble said the family had relatives in Cleveland, O.

The will provided that at Mr. Bell's death the property was to go to the Rivercliff cemetery trustees.

114 Workers Take Field in Y Campaign Today

Dinner Launches Drive for $12,450 with Team Members Determined To Go Over Top.

One hundred and fourteen Marion men who are working in the Y. M. C. A. campaign for $12,450 took the field today with names of 2,100 prospective donors in their pockets after displaying enthusiasm and determination to "go over the top" in the kickoff dinner of the drive at the Y building last night.

They will make reports of their progress tonight, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday and polish off the campaign with a victory dinner next Monday night.

Despite the fact the goal is approximately $3,600 above last year's objective, leaders in all divisions of the drive voiced determination to make the windup dinner actually a victory feast.

The campaign organization, already set up on a competitive basis in the form of rival football conferences, saw the spirit of rivalry soar last night when Arden Millisor, head of the Pacific Coast conference, issued a challenge which all divisions accepted. He proposed to rival divisions in the general solicitation that the winning division eat turkey at the victory dinner and that the losing divisions be served "hot dogs." He extended the challenge by proposing that the advance gifts committee be permitted to eat turkey only if its percentage of increase in subscriptions as compared with last year exceed the percentage of increases for the divisions in charge of the general solicitation.

Leaders Speak

Common Pleas Judge Hector S. Young, John H. Clark, Marion attorney, E. N. Hale, Y secretary, Billy Williams, a sixth grade pupil at Greenwood school, George Hildebrandt, campaign chairman and the division leaders were speakers on last night's program.

Judge Young sounded the need for a new Y. M. C. A. building and asked the younger workers in the campaign to "start dreaming about a new building." He said he did not propose that the new building should be sought this year, and possibly not next year but that the building presented a problem for which preparation should be made. He pointed out the last five years have been a battle "to keep the Y afloat," and that it is now necessary to start returning the program on the level it formerly occupied, with a trained physical director on duty and facilities to serve the thousands reached by the Y.

Mr. Clark took as his subject "The Tragedy of the Letdown," citing a problem formerly encountered by French generals in keeping the morale of their men high during periods of inactivity. He asserted the "depression in morals" in the last few years far overshadowed the economic depression and that "we're still in the depression in morals—up to our necks." Only through communitywide influence such as offered young people by the Y. M. C. A. can the letdown in morals be overcome, he said.

Building Is Hub

Mr. Hale briefly outlined Y activities, asserted the goal this year is only half of the $25,000 goals the Y used to drive for and said the organization no longer should be asked to operate on a starvation budget. He said last year's costs show less than $5 was spent for each person served by the Y whereas the figure in a majority of cities runs around $10. He urged drive workers not to think of Y activities as being centered in the building. "It's only the hub of a far-reaching program that goes out into every part of the city through 188 groups," he said. The Y, he said, is intensive in its work as well as extensive, citing 681 personal interviews in the last year. The Y reached 2,884 persons, concerned itself with the leisure problems of Marion's boys and girls and holds before them

Trailer Brings Voting and Tax Problem Here

Election Board and Auditor Consider Status of Sheridan Road Family.

The question of whether an automobile trailer is a home suitable to establish residence for voting has been ruled on by Secretary of State William J. Kennedy, C. G. Ritzler, deputy clerk of the board of elections, said today following receipt of a letter from the state official. Meanwhile County Auditor Harry V. Mounts is faced with the problem of whether a trailer from which the wheels has been removed is taxable as real estate.

The only case of a trailer home in Marion, affecting either the board of elections or the auditor, thus far is that of the William C. Scranton family which is living in a trailer without wheels at 790 Sheridan road. They have been living there for more than two years.

Mr. Ritzler said he does not believe Mr. Kennedy's ruling that a trailer is insufficient residence for voting purposes will affect the Scrantons since their trailer is more or less permanent.

County Auditor Mounts said the situation has been called to his

STOCKS RALLY AFTER $1 TO $15 TAILSPIN

Five Million Shares by 1 P. M. Sets New Record as Exchange Goes Wild.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 — The stock market rallied after a two and a half hour tailspin under huge selling today and leading shares recovered a portion of wide early losses.

The sell-off, which followed yesterday's break, was on the heaviest volume in more than four years, with 3,890,000 shares between 10 o'clock and noon. As recoveries were made after the selling wave, activity tapered down, but the ticker tape still lagged many minutes behind floor trading.

At 1 p. m. the stock exchange reported 5,040,000 shares had changed hands to; that time, the heaviest volume since the securities exchange commission began "policing" the market in 1934. It was also the first five-million share day in that time, with two hours still to go.

The ticker tape, once 32 minutes behind the floor, was only seven minutes late as the fourth hour began. Bonds were also sold in large volume.

There were scenes of wild confusion at the opening as shouting brokers rushed to execute orders pouring in from all over the country and abroad. Prices dropped by as much as from $1 to $15 a share, but the recovery cut many of these losses. For example, Allied Chemical, at one time down $13, picked up all but $3 of its drop, and some stocks even gained over yesterday's closing prices.

Brokers said necessitous selling arose as the result of impaired margins exposed by yesterday's stock market break. Prices suffered by from $1 to $13 a share.

Despite the selling, "bargain

WPA PROJECT TO EMPLOY 140

County Commissioners Arrange Work To Last Until July 1; Cost Set at $77,806.

READY FOR APPROVAL

Sponsor's Share of Expense Will Be $17,003; Government To Pay $60,803.

County commissioners yesterday afternoon signed a $77,806 WPA project which will employ 140 men until next July 1. The project is a countywide road and ditch improvement program similar to the one now in effect, they said. The county as sponsor will pay $17,003 or 22 per cent and the federal government $60,803 or 78 per cent of the total cost.

The project is now ready to be sent to Washington for final government approval, having already been approved by the Columbus WPA office. It is scheduled to start about Dec. 1.

July 1 was selected as the closing date because it is generally understood that WPA is scheduled to end at that time, Leo J. Cusick, president of the board of county commissioners, said. The project was also signed with the understanding that the city has already signed projects which will employ the remainder of the approximately 350 men on WPA, Mr. Cusick said. The city also has signed projects to employ approximately 75 WPA women from about Nov. 15 to June 30.

The present project sponsored by commissioners will continue until the time the new project gets under way, Mr. Cusick said. The project was drafted with the aid of the county engineer's office.

Approximately 100 miles of road, to be selected later, will be improved. The complete description of the project follows: Improvement of county roads by grading, widening, grubbing, draining, berming, installing tile drains and catch basins, extending culverts, widening bridge footers and wing-walls and other improvements that might be necessary.

When the project begins it will be the only one under the sponsorship of the county and will represent a consolidation of all projects in accordance with the recently established WPA policy of setting up blanket projects to reduce cost of supervision and to cut "red tape" to the smallest amount possible.

NEW DEALER LOSES ARKANSAS ELECTION

John E. Miller, Independent, Elected to Senate Seat of Late Joe Robinson.

By The Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 19—A Democratic congressman who campaigned as an independent assumed the senatorial toga of the late Joe Robinson today through a precedent-breaking defeat of a new deal Democrat.

Rep. John E. Miller became the first independent candidate to win a major Arkansas office in 77 years when he was elected over Gov. Earl E. Bailey in yesterday's special election.

The contested term expires Jan. 1, 1943, and the 48-year-old senator-elect said he would take his seat at the special session Nov. 15.

Associated Press returns today showed Miller with 61,528 votes to 40,390 for Bailey in 1,342 of 1,982 precincts.

Bailey projected the new deal into the campaign, terming Miller "anti-Roosevelt" and asserting a victory for the congressman would be a "slap in the face for Franklin Delano Roosevelt."

MISHAP WORST IN AIR HISTORY

Company Assembles Crews To Bring Bodies Down from Mountain Top.

AIRLINER DEMOLISHED

Scattered Over Peak with Both Motors Hurtled Ahead of Rest of Plane.

By The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 19—A ground searching party reached the crumpled "Mainliner" high in the Uinta mountains today and found all 19 occupants of the luxurious air transport dead.

Ralph Johnson, a United Air Lines pilot and one of a group of four who kept going all night in the treacherous snow, informed L. D. Cuddeback, division superintendent, that a survey of the wreckage by flashlight showed no sign of life.

After Johnson brought out word of the tragedy—the greatest number of persons ever killed in an American airplane crash—the air line quickly assembled officials, airplanes and ground workers to bring out the bodies.

Based at Airport

The Knight, Wyo., airport, 26 miles to the north, was made the base of operations.

Cuddeback said Johnson went up to the big airplane, "peered in and found that the 16 passengers and crew of three were dead."

Because of the condition of the wreckage on towering Chalk peak, Johnson was unable to make a complete investigation.

He wasted no time, but started immediately down the mountainside for help.

Johnson made no report as to the condition of the victims' bodies.

Air line officials declined to speculate as to how long it would take to remove the bodies, but expressed hope that it would be done by nightfall.

"Wreckage of the ship was scattered over an area 200 feet long," said Bill McDougal, Salt Lake City reporter. "So were the 19 victims."

McDougal was the first newspaper man to reach the scene.

"The plane crashed apparently with the throttle open 300 feet below the highest edge of a saddle between two peaks at the head of Humpy creek in northeastern Summit county, Utah, 25 miles south of Knight, Wyo.," McDougal said.

Crashed and Burned

"It crashed and burned with what must have been a terrific explosion and flare of gasoline. From a flashlight examination of the wreckage it appeared that only the front part had been seared.

"The few bodies visible showed no signs of having been burned. It was so dark, however, when I examined them, that it was impossible to determine this for sure.

"The forward portion of the plane was a nightmare of twisted, blackened metal. The tail, on the outside, was undamaged.

"The right motor hurtled 200 feet forward up the ridge. The left came to rest 150 feet forward. In between, buried in deep snow, were bodies, seat cushions, blankets and other evidence of terrific impact.

"The plane was flying due southwest when it crashed. Had it been flying in the middle of the canyon, it would have cleared the saddle.

"The pilot may have realized disaster was upon him a moment before oblivion, for the ship was nosed slightly upward. It sheared 10 pine trees as though they were matchwood.

"The right wing was broken off, folded back and lay parallel with the fuselage. The left wing was also sheared, but lay at last of an angle. The body was broken completely in half slightly back of the ship's center.

"Five of us reached the plane

Strategy Mapped for Harding's League Opener Friday

Haddock Uses Jaw Blows To Floor Mute Wrestler

By a queer turn of events Smilin' James Haddock won over Silent Rattan, Kansas City's mute grappler, while a disqualification in the decisive round gave Lefty Pacer of New York City a victory over Jimmy Spencer of Boston in the spotlighted bouts on last night's mat card at the Marion Steam Shovel arena. A 20-minute preliminary that found Tiger Moore of Benton, Ill., and Buddy Knox of Wheeling, W. Va., battling to a draw brought a wide round of applause from spectators.

Even died-in-the-wool mat addicts were surprised at the unusual "change of heart" that gave Haddock the win over Rattan, in a wild closing barrage of punches after the bout had been clean all the way to the very finish. The grapplers had divided the initial rounds, Haddock taking the first in 13 minutes with a spin and shoulder press and Rattan winning the second with a flying head scissors in seven minutes.

The final round was but four minutes old when Gentleman Jim pulled the surprise act that caught both his opponent and spectators off guard. All the way the bout had been clean, with never a blow being struck until Haddock broke loose to destroy the confidence he had built up on his clever and aggressive grappling. Ordered to break as he tangled with Rattan near the ropes, Haddock stepped back and Rattan permitted his guard to go down momentarily.

Then, with the fury of a madman, Haddock struck out with rights and lefts to Rattan's jaw to floor the Kansan and hop in to pin him with shoulder press. Irked spectators booed and jeered in disapproval of the seemingly unfair advantage that Haddock had taken over his mute opponent. Gentleman Jim, however, didn't appear to mind the hostility of the audience as he strode from the ring, winner over the crowd's favorite.

Yelling fans unloosed their lungs for the finish of the Spencer-Pacer bout that found at least one over-enthusiastic spectator in the ring as the scrap came to a close. Spencer's hefty punches, which he tossed with regularity at his opponent, led him into trouble when he directed his assault on Referee Verne Griffiths. The official halted the final round at the end of 10 minutes, giving the decisive fall to Lefty Pacer by disqualification.

Spencer had won the initial round in 11 minutes with a tough crab hold, after hair pulling his way out of the tough spots and seeking the ropes for his own protection. The succeeding round went six minutes with Pacer winning on a spin, slam and shoulder butt to pin his opponent's prostrate frame with an ordinary press. Pacer pulled no punches in his barrage of retaliation against Spencer's rough stuff.

In the 10-minute final fall, Referee Griffith tried often but always unsuccessfully to halt Spencer's rough display. Having the referee cramp his style was apparently too much for the Bostonian, who then turned his attack on the official and consequently lost by disqualification. The 20-minute preliminary convinced fans that the fast-moving combatants, Tiger Moore and Buddy Knox, would look good in a full time limit match.

RESERVE ACE HEADS GRID SCORING PARADE

Lucas Tops Ohio Point Makers with 30 in Four Games.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 19 — Johnny Lucas, Western Reserve's flashy halfback from Sharpsville, Pa., held a touchdown lead over the rest of the pack today as Ohio's individual scorers dashed into the second half of the race, but four players were right on his heels in a second-place tie.

The Red Cat sophomore, scoring at least once in each of Reserve's four games, has 30 points as the result of five touchdown jaunts. Ray Zeh of Reserve, who won the 1935 national scoring honors with 112 points, had 67 that year at the end of four contests. Norm Schoen of Baldwin-Wallace had 49 for the first four last year and then went on to take the national crown with 117.

DEFENSE AGAINST ASHLAND'S AERIAL ATTACKS OUTLINED

Marion Team Intact for N. C. O. Tilt; To Work Out Wednesday.

Harding High' gridiron brain-trusters, the scouts and coaches who outline the plan of attack and defense, met last night for a lengthy skull session to formulate plans for the Presidents' invasion of Ashland Friday night for their first North Central Ohio conference game. The gruelling workout against Findlay's Trojans last Friday night, coupled with the extremely wet weather, gave the Harding squad a brief respite from practice workouts.

Idle since the game Friday, the Presidents will not return to the practice field until Wednesday night. Two workouts this week will compose the program of preparation for the invasion of Ashland. The rest is expected to put the Presidents in top form for the initial conference game. No injuries of a serious nature were reported following the clash with Findlay and the team is expected to be intact for this week's encounter.

"Brush up on aerial defense," was the keynote of the skull session attended last night by Coach Carl Cramer, Assistant Bill Williams and "B" Coach George Niemi. The latter scouted Ashland's 7 to 6 win over Wooster last week and brought back the warning that the opposing club for Friday night's conflict will likely rely largely on a concerted aerial drive in the attempt to upset Harding.

So tomorrow night when the Harding gridders go out on the practice gridiron they will busy themselves knocking down passes, breaking through the line to harass the ball tosser; the backfield men will keep a sharp eye open for soaring ovals. The air-minded Ashland team, noticeably weak in other departments of the game, has come to be feared because of its all too successful aerial attack.

The team will be a dangerous one for Harding to meet in the inauguration of the N. C. O. league competition. A successful aerial offense could easily hold the balance of power in the meeting of the teams and with that as a constant threat, Harding players will need to be on the alert to come out in front at the final gun.

The Friday night game is set to start at 7:30 o'clock on the Ashland college field. The Presidents will embark in a chartered bus at 4:45 o'clock in time to be on the scene of action for a warm-up workout before the kick-off. A squad of approximately 25 players will be taken on the 51-mile trek, according to present plans, Coach Cramer said.

SMITH, COOPER WIN OKLAHOMA TOURNEY

Chicago Golf Experts Defeat 14 Other Professionals in $5,000 Event.

By The Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 19—Horton Smith and Harry Cooper patted each other on the back today, tied their purse strings around $1,200, and pocketed the championship of Oklahoma City's first annual $5,000 four-ball golf tournament.

Favorites when the tournament started Thursday, the Chicago sharpshooters battled 14 other crack professionals, two by two, over 126 holes in Oklahoma's worst weather and came up with five victories and two defeats for 12 points.

Smith and Cooper, who also won $100 for the low ball of the tournament with a 63, whipped Guldahl and Burke in yesterday's final round, 3-up.

Revolta and Mangrum, who had pushed the victors closely, tried vainly to overtake them by overpowering Armour and Thomson but the long-hitting Thomson staved off the attack and Revolta and Mangrum barely nosed them out, one up.

MATCHING OF TURF FAVORITES URGED

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 — William Kyne, general manager of the Bay Meadows (Calif.) track, today offered $15,000 for a match race between C. S. Howard's Seabiscuit and T. P. Morgan's Heelfly, the pair that raced to a dead heat in the Laurel Stakes last Saturday. Kyne would stage the race Oct. 30 at a mile and a sixteenth with Seabiscuit carrying 126 pounds and Heelfly, 120. Seabiscuit's handlers were said to favor the race but L. T. Whitehill, trainer of Heelfly, is waiting for the weights to be announced for Saturday's running of the Maryland handicap at Laurel before making a decision.

Irish Suicide Schedule

BY BURNLEY

SAD-EYED Elmer Layden's tears are not of the crocodile variety as he surveys the remaining games on Notre Dame's schedule.

Six formidable foes in a row loom in the path of the Fighting Irish, and if by some miracle they should go through this half of their schedule without defeat, nearly everyone would be willing to concede them the national title.

Just look at this set-up: Navy, Minnesota, Pittsburgh, Army, Northwestern and Southern California—on successive Saturdays, without a single "breather" in between! Pool Elmer!

The Irish have shaped up pretty well in their early games, but now the panic is on, and the slogan is, "Old men and cripples keep back of the ropes." One consolation to Celtic followers of Notre Dame this year is the fact that there really are a few Hibernians in the line-up of the so-called Irish. O'Reilly, McCormick, McCarty, Murphy, Sweeney, Horan—these are a few of the names to be found representing Notre Dame on the gridiron this season.

Nevin "Bunny" McCormick is Layden's backfield ace. He's a comparatively frail chap, built on the stream-lined style of Southern California's Cotton Warburton of a few years back. Last year the bounding Bunny compiled the highest ground-gaining average ever attained by a Notre Dame right halfback.

CUBS TO NEGOTIATE WITH TONY LAZZERI

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—The Chicago Cubs today were in the field which is bidding for the services of Tony Lazzeri, slugging star of the recent World Series and then unconditionally released by the champion New York Yankees.

Phil K. Wrigley, owner of the Chicago National League team, said Lazzeri had accepted an invitation to confer here relative to joining the Cubs—but Wrigley declined to say whether Lazzeri has been, or would be, offered a post as scout, coach or manager in 1938. Charlie Grimm is under contract to pilot the Cubs again next year.

DI MAGGIO SEEN AS BIDDER FOR DIAMOND HONORS FOR ALL TIME

Combination of Baseball Virtues May Make Him Game's No. 1 Man.

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—Possibly this won't come under the head of a revelation, except that I propose to go a little further on the subject of that extraordinary youth known as Joe Di Maggio than anything I have heard or read to date. The average tribute so far has hailed him as the outstanding young ball player of his day. Unless I'm mistaken, we can say a lot more than that for him.

Unless I'm mistaken, he can be and might become the outstanding ball player of all time, not as long with his hits as Ruth perhaps; not the all around man that Cobb was. But a composite of the various virtues we've known on the ball field, plus a few that he has added, strictly on his own.

At the plate, he is the nearest thing to Hans Wagner I've ever seen. The same, easy effortless stance, with the bat looking like a willow wand in their tremendous hands. Like Wagner, too, Di Maggio does not "hitch" with his swing at any point. Instead, he stands perfectly motionless, perfectly poised. Then he waits until the ball gets right in front of his face and hits it a rural mile.

Certainly for sheer style, there has been nothing like him since Wagner. Cobb, for instance, choked his bat with his hands separated by four inches or more—until the moment of impact. Then he slid the left hand down to meet the right. Ruth developed a hitch back behind his left ear in his later days. Gehrig is beginning to do the same thing now.

I hardly remember Lajoie, except that, while an innately graceful man in everything he did, he still lacked the practical soundness of Wagner's swing. Di Maggio doesn't—and remember this: Great as he has been so far, his real development is still ahead of him. The young man will be 23 in November.

Before long, therefore, you can look for the boys in the press hangar to start discovering that he's another Speaker in centerfield. He's practically that now. Great arm, great judgment on a fly ball, an unerring sense for playing the hitter; great speed, although he's 200 pounds on any scales and is built along the general lines of a caribou.

In one respect, he has it on Speaker now. He's more accurate with his throwing arm, Speaker having been a left hander with the latter's natural inclination to curve any long throw.

I don't mean to be immoderate about this business. For years, I've always held Cobb as the ideal, even above Ruth. And each, in their own way, probably will remain so with everybody—Ruth for his home-run hitting, Cobb for his .385 to .420 average, year after year, and his genius for base running the like of which no other ball player of this or any other age ever was able to approach, or probably ever will.

So I'm going pretty far with young Di Maggio. But that's just the point. I think he's going very, very far himself.

OLYMPIC AUTHORITY SOUGHT BY COLLEGES

Drive on for Control of American Teams in Four Sports.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 19—American colleges, reopening a quarter-century old fight with the Amateur Athletic Union, drove in the first punch today in their battle for control of American Olympic teams in four sports.

The colleges, through the National Collegiate Athletic association, petitioned for adoption of an amendment which, if approved at the quadrennial meeting of the American Olympic association in Washington Nov. 17, would provide for reapportionment of representation on Olympic committees governing track, crew racing, swimming and wrestling.

The amendment specifically provided that three of five members of the crew committee and five of nine members of the track, wrestling and swimming committees be college representatives. At present the A. A. U. controls these sports with nine of 13 members of each committee.

"We do not seek control of the Olympic committee," Maj. Griffith said. "We only desire to protect ourselves against the wrong sort of men being placed in charge of teams which we develop and finance for Olympic competition."

SNATCHES OF SPORTS

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—Flash—The Pittsburgh Pirates will be broken up, if they can get what they want....Except for pitchers Bauers, Tobin and Bowman; Catcher Todd and Infielders Brubaker and Handley, they're ready to shoot the works—Arky Vaughn is definitely on the block.

Not since this corner can remember have so many top flight football teams been on the outside looking in this early in the season....Solly Krieger, the middleweight, is running for councilman in one of the Brooklyn districts and may make it....On his way home to Memphis, Bill Terry stopped off in Richmond and presented Eddie Mooers, owner of the Colts, with a Giant windbreaker and two balls autographed by every member of the team.

Is it Cleveland or St. Louis for Tony Lazzeri?....Mike Jacobs and Joe Gould spotted walking up Sixth avenue in their new camel's hair topcoats....One of the strongest all-star teams in any league (collitch or pro) could be assembled from the Smiths, Johnsons and Millers in the National pro league....Five Smiths, as many Johnsons and four Millers do their stuff regularly in that loop.....And here's another odd one: When the Green Bay Packers lined up against the Cleveland Rams Sunday, Mike Michalske, a native of Cleveland, played guard for Green Bay, while Richard Zoll, who hails from Green Bay, was at guard for the Rams.

Attention, Mr. Alan Gould: Western scouts say you should not overlook a guy named Popovich, now running wild for U. of Montana, when making your All-America selections....Seems this gent is very regular at halfbacking—never flies the white flag and when he gets off to a fast lope can click those furlongs off like War Admiral....Also, Colorado wants you to keep an eye on a bird named Byron (Whizzer) White of Colorado U.....They say this White is just about as good as Dutch Clark (whom you discovered)....Last year, he ran back three kickoffs for T.D.'s including a 103-yard gallop against Denver U. and one of 80-yards against Utah.

Coach Francis Schmidt of Ohio State is making a habit of losing contests by one point....He lost to Illinois 14 to 13 in 1934.....Last year he dropped a heartbreaker to Northwestern, 14 to 13, and so far this year has lost a 13 to 12 game to Southern California....More baseball deals due to pop any day now....They call Pie Traynor the "Caspar Milquetoast" of the pilots, but he slapped more fines on his players this season than any other manager.

"I don't go around advertising it," says Pie, "as it hurts the players' sale or trade value."

STOCKS BREAK 1 TO 13 POINTS

4,000,000 Shares Turned Over in First Two Hours; Major Losses Reduced.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—Stock market leaders toppled 1 to more than 13 points today in the heaviest selling witnessed in more than four years.

Reported investment trust buying on the way down, however, attracted support in the latter part of the proceedings and extreme losses were substantially reduced in many cases near the fourth hour. Nearly 4,000,000 shares were turned over in the first two hours.

Unloading of numerous impaired margin accounts, in addition to exceptionally large offerings from all parts of the country and abroad, swamped brokerage houses and put the floor of the Stock Exchange in a state of demoralization seldom experienced since the big 1929 break.

The ticker tape was a much as 22 minutes behind during the great portion of the session and bids and offers swung over a wide orbit as traders attempted to obtain quotations. Blocks of 1,000 to 25,000 shares were plentiful.

Delayed openings were frequent. American Telephone and Chrysler appeared 20 to 25 minutes late. It required almost two hours for a trade to be negotiated in Nash-Kelvinator. In an initial 25,000-share transaction it was off 5½ at 5.

Bonds, especially U. S. governments, weakened with stocks and commodities pointed decisively lower. Foreign markets retreated.

Contesting the trend with gains up to a point were General Electric, Montgomery Ward, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Electric Power & Light.

Wall Sueet observers were inclined to attribute the fresh relapse partly to what they termed "defeaust psychology" engendered by Monday's downfall and the refusal of the list to follow through on rallies since the post-Labor day tumble.

The unexpectedly drastic decrease in steel mill operations this week, in addition, was seen as a depressant to buying forces in that it presented implications of a more than ordinary business recession in subsequent months.

Not overlooked was the President's revised federal budgat, indicating an unexplained drop in estimated revenues, plans for retrenchment in expenditures and the possibilty of tax hoists next year.

There was talk of short selling by so-called "pools" in Europe and liquidation by long-discouraged domestic holders. Short sales in New York, though, were said to have been at a minimum.

FOUR CENT WHEAT SETBACK REDUCED

Slump at Start Followed by Upturn Amid Good Export News.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 19 — Despite maximum temporary setbacks of almost four cents a bushel, wheat regained nearly all the loss in late trading.

Fairly good export business in North American wheat, upwards of 500,000 bushels, helped the recovery. Top prices for wheat, however, were not well maintained at the finish, and nervousness regarding the course of securities was much in evidence.

At the close, wheat was 1⅜-2¼ lower compared with yesterday's finish, Dec. 97⅛-⅜, May 97¾-1, corn ½-1¼ down, Dec. 59, May 60½, and oats ¼-⅝ off.

MOVIES TO KEEP RECORD OF ACTIVITIES AT SCHOOL

Football Games and Other Work of Pupils To Be Filmed in New Experiment Here.

A new record of school activity will be kept at Central Junior High school this year—a record accurately filed through the eye of a motion picture camera.

It will be the first time such an experiment has been made in Marion, and it is being done at present only in a few large cities in the state.

In all probability it will be well into the second semester of school before the record is completed, according to W. E. Orcutt, principal.

First pictures to be taken will be of the school's football squad and these will be made at the Central-Vernon game on Thursday, weather permitting.

No more will be taken until the work of preparing a scenario is completed and then the pictures will be made as much as possible in the sequence in which they will be shown later.

The task of preparing the scenario is in the hands of a faculty committee composed of Cecil Gabler, chairman, Miss Wilda Walker, Miss Laurel Hanley, John E. Beer and Mr. Orcutt.

When completed the picture will show in detail every extra-curricular activity in the school, classroom groups of every subject taught, the classrooms, study halls, and general building arrangement.

Merle H. Hughes of Marion, who has made a hobby of motion picture photography will take or supervise the taking of virtually all pictures. He will furnish the camera and the school will furnish the 16 milimeter films which will be used

Money to purchase the film and to pay for its processing has been raised in a seven day magazine sale conducted by the pupils. It is anticipated approximately $175 will be raised by the sale.

The film will be put to various uses, one of the principal ones of which will be showing it at those grade schools having sixth grade pupils who will enter Central for their junior high school work and to acquaint parents and citizens of the city with actual school procedure.

IT'S ODD But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK—The elephant of Bethlehem is creating a stir in science.

The bones of this elephant were discovered three years ago by the owner of a garden. He was digging for water on the highest point in Bethlehem. They rested 15 feet below the surface.

In studies since then scientists have come to some conclusions. This elephant was of the Asiatic, not the African type. He was somewhat primitive, not as well developed as the two present day species.

The time when he lived in Bethlehem was Pleistocene, and probably less than a million years ago. That is not too early for the first known bones of man which have been found in various parts of the world.

No human bones that old have been found in Bethlehem nor anywhere in Palestine. But when the Elephant of Bethlehem lived, the climate there was warmer than now, and the country was not so dry. Bethlehem was then apparently a fair sort of earthly paradise.

OFFICE GIRL FOUND ATTACKED AND SLAIN

Sheriff Tells of "Terrific Struggle" Put Up in Loram County Southeast of Elyria.

By The Associated Press

CRAFTON, O., Oct. 19—Pretty Louise Hornbeck, 19, was found slain in a vacant lot next to her home today. Sheriff William Grall said she was criminally assaulted and put up a terrific struggle" before she was battered into insensibility.

In this Loram county community, southeast of Elyria, the sheriff started a search for the person or persons who killed her as she was returning home about 9:15 o'clock last night from the office of Dr. Earl Maple, dentist, where she was employed.

Her father, Earl Hornbeck, maintenance foreman for the New York Central railroad, and a neighbor, Willis Rader, searched for the girl throughout the night after she failed to arrive home.

They saw evidences of a struggle on a sidewalk bordering the lot. A trail of clothing—the girl's coat, slippers, umbrella and hat—led them to the body in the weed-grown plot of ground.

The girl had been beaten on the head several times.

Her father and mother were unable to offer any theory in the killing. She had no close male friends, they said, and always came home promptly.

A woman neighbor told deputies she heard a noise that attracted her attention and turned on a porch light, but saw nothing. This was at about 9:40 p. m., the neighbor said.

Dr. S. C. Ward, county coroner, said death was due to a brain concussion. Her skull was not fractured.

The young girl was hit with a club and might have suffered the concussion either then or when her head struck the ground, Dr. Ward said.

He said the girl had been dead since early in the night. Her diamond ring and watch were untouched. The coroner said she might have been slain by one or more persons.

attention and that he plans to present the facts to the state tax commission for an opinion as to whether the trailer can be taxed as real estate. It is parked in a vacant lot not owned by the Scrantons. If a trailer license has been purchased for the trailer then it probably cannot be retaxed as real estate, officials said. Then too, it may be listed as personal property rather than real estate, one official commented.

In regard to election laws, Mr. Kennedy wrote to Mr. Ritzler that a residence is a place "in which his (a voter's) habitation is fixed and to which, whenever he is absent, he has the intention of returning." He stated that a trailer is primarily a vehicle for transportation and it cannot be designated as a place of abode in so far as election laws are concerned.

An elector living in a trailer will be permitted to exercise his voting privilege at the place where his right to vote was previously exercised, provided his absence from his actual home is only temporary, Mr. Kennedy said.

BOARD SEEKS SPACE FOR CLERK'S OFFICE

Consider Waiting Room to Courtroom To Handle Auto Permit Business.

County commissioners yesterday granted the request of Clerk of Courts Carl F. Haberman for additional office space for administering the new state law affecting automobile title registrations. They agreed tentatively on the common pleas court waiting room for the expansion, but delayed final approval until they confer with Judge Hector S. Young for his opinion.

Under the tentative plans the large arch which divides the waiting room into two sections would be closed with a partition with a door leading through it into the judge's chambers and the courtroom. A counter would be installed across the new room. Customers would enter from the present door which leads from the third floor lobby into the waiting room.

The new law, effective Jan. 1, requires that a certificate of title be issued for all automobiles sold after that date, replacing bills of sale.

COUNTY AGREES ON SUIT SETTLEMENT

Approval of Court Awaited in Move To Terminate $11,260 Damage Action.

Attorneys in the suits of Sumner A. Morrison and his wife Ola Belle, asking judgments totaling $11,260 against the board of county commissioners, have reached a tentative settlement out of common pleas court, Prosecuting Attorney Paul D. Michel informed commissioners yesterday. The suits were due for trial in this term of court, having been set down previously but withdrawn.

The approval of Judge Hector S. Young of the settlement and his dismissal of the case are awaited before the terms of the agreement are to be announced, court officials said. J. D. Williamson and Mouser & Mouser are attorneys for the plaintiffs.

The suits are based on an automobile accident on Aug. 27, 1932 on the Linn-Hipsher road in which Mrs. Morrison suffered fracture of three ribs, a broken nose and other injuries which she contended are permanent. She asked judgment of $10,024.

The husband sought damages of $1,236 for medical expenses and loss of his wife's services. They contended the county was at fault in that the road west of the Lance ditch was washed out and caused the automobile, driven by Mr. Morrison, to be thrown from the road.

POISON JURY SCANS SCRAWLED WRITING

State Introduces Paper from Victim's Home Bequeathing Property to Mrs. Hahn.

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 19—The state attempted today to complete another link in its chain of evidence around Mrs. Anna Marie Hahn, accused poison slayer of elderly Jacob Wagner.

The jury studied a scrawled document introduced by the state through Charles Dotzhauer, deputy probate court clerk, who identified it as the paper found in Wagner's home after he died in a hospital. Dated Jan. 10, 1936, it read in part: "I hereby make my last will and testament. I have money in the bank and want my bills paid, the rest I want to go to by relative, Mrs. Anna Hahn. I want Mrs. Harn to be executor of my estate."

Dotzhauer said he found the document on the mantle-piece during a search of the Wagner home after "Mrs. Hahn let me in with her key."

Prosecutor Dudley Miller outcelt contended in his opening statement that Mrs. Hahn became acquainted with Wagner last May.

Judge Charles S. Bell refused to admit at a night session testimony by Mrs. Mattie Monroe, caretaker at the building where Wagner lived, that she found two bottles in one of his rooms.

HITLER TAKES HAND IN SPANISH DISPUTE

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 19—Germany's Chancellor Hitler was expected today to send special instructions from his Bavaria retreat which may mean success or failure for European powers trying to agree on a formula for withdrawal of foreign soldiers from Spain.

The reichschancellor's attitude—hitherto only a backdrop for Premier Mussolini of Italy in these vital talks—was projected to the forefront when Hitler's ambassador to London, Joachim von Ribbentrop, made an unexpected, semi-secret flight to Germany to obtain der fuehrer's views.

(A Munich dispatch said the envoy arrived there last evening and immediately proceeded to Berchtesgaden to report to Hitler.)

The departure from England of the Nazi representative in the London negotiations was not known generally until it was disclosed he had reached Germany.

It was doubtful whether he would return here in time for resumption of the non-intervention sub-committee's session this afternoon.

FREDDIE GETS RAISE BUT WOES CONTINUE

Parents' Suit To Set Aside Aunt's Adoption Will Be Heard Nov. 1.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 19—Freddie Bartholomew got a $50,000-a-year pay raise but his troubles aren't over yet.

Now it comes a hearing on his parents' suit to set aside his adoption by his aunt, Miss Mylliccent Bartholomew, on grounds of deception.

The 13-year-old boy actor won a new contract from M-G-M yesterday giving him $2,000 a week (and $1 a week spending money) for two years.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil L. Bartholomew, charge Freddie's aunt gave them a written agreement they could have him back anytime they wanted him. They said they believed the agreement was binding but that Miss Bartholomew refused to surrender her guardianship.

The father expressed satisfaction with the new film contract "because it keeps Freddie with M-G-M, which has been very fair with him."

The child star's old contract brought him $1,109 a week. Under the new one he will get $2,000 a week for 40 weeks and $3,000 weekly for six weeks of personal appearances. Miss Bartholomew will get $4,000 a year for taking care of him.

Deficit Accompanies Decline in Stocks

BY WILLIAM B. ARDERY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 — The Roosevelt administration chalked up a swelling treasury deficit and deflated spending program today on a backdrop of plunging securities values.

One school of economic thought traced the stock market slump to a lessening of huge federal pump-priming operations. Another contended the increase in the estimated federal deficit had lessened the prospects of a balanced budget and thereby discouraged the expansion of private credit essential to economic uplift.

In treasury dollars and cents these factors appeared involved:

The deficit: President Roosevelt estimated that on June 30, 1938, the treasury's receipts would run behind 12 months of spending by $695,000,000. In April he had estimated the net deficit at $418,000,000.

Curtailed spending: Outlays attributed to "recovery and relief" were allotted only $1,876,000,000 for the fiscal year compared with $3,014,000,000 for the preceding year. New loans by the potent Reconstruction Finance Corp. and public works administration were halted.

Treasury revenues: Receipts slumped $643,000,000 from January's estimate of $6,650,000,000 leaving implications of business recesses accompanying the stock and commodity market declines. Mr. Roosevelt's own analysis attributed the drop to lessened income taxes and social security levies on wages and payrolls.

Agriculture and industry: A down-tilt in some major business barometers, evidenced in a degree by the stock market, has accompanied slumping farm prices. Important factors in appraising the future were two issues scheduled for the special session of congress—crop control and wage-hour legislation.

In order to match income and outgo in the next fiscal year, a sharp contraction of federal spending would be necessary if anticipated receipts continue to fall.

Just what this might mean to business and the stock market only time can tell. Many, however, interpreted the President's recent economy statements as an indication that the administration is definitely choking off huge outflows from the federal treasury, regardless of which way the financial weathervanes swing.

Because the federal budget is one admitted factor in the present business situation, some observers also have taken into account various regulatory activities of the federal reserve board and securities commission.

This school of thought, made vocal last week in an address by Winthrop W. Aldrich of New York, chairman of the Chase National bank, holds that federal regulation has tended to hamper trade and to puncture any trend toward stock market buoyancy.

Both the reserve board and the securities commission have been taking the pulse of the steadily dropping stock almost hourly, but thus far have given no indication that they intend to drop federal regulatory bars in an effort to boost security prices.

Possible lines of action include a cut in the reserve board's margin requirements, which now make securities buyers put out 55 per cent of the purchase price in cash, and a relaxation of securities commission rules on market "insiders."

GOOD LIVESTOCK PRICES INCREASE FARM INCOMES

Boost in Meat Values and Bigger Production Offset Recessions in Wheat and Corn Quotations.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 19—Ohio farmers credited livestock today with offsetting low wheat prices and enabling them to estimate a total 1937 income 10 per cent higher than that of last year.

High meat prices combined with an 18 per cent increase in livestock production, estimated by J. I. Falconer of Ohio State university's department of rural economics, to raise the crop-meat total income although crop values dropped 28 per cent compared with 1936.

Falconer said the drop in crop income came in spite of an 18 per cent increase in production.

"Much of the decrease in value was because of the low price of corn," he said.

"While Ohio farmers produced 158,000,000 bushels of corn this year, an increase of 30,000,000 over 1936, the price was 43 cents compared with 95 cents a bushel last year."

Falconer said that killing frosts within the last few days ended the best growing season in many years. Sufficient moisture and a contrast to the arid, sub-normal conditions of 1936, he reported.

Economists estimated the 1937 Ohio farm income at $624,000,000 or more than twice that of 1932. Last years figure was $312,000,000.

Ohio farmers who devoted a major share of their time to meat animals found their income increasing faster than the incomes of those who dealt in dairy products, Falconer said.

Price as of Sept. 1 were higher for eight out of 17 important farm products than the 1926-30 average taken as a normal production period.

Products which sold above normal Sept. 1 were wool, eggs, beef cattle, veal, calves, lambs, chickens and milk.

Lower than normal were buckwheat, hay, potatoes, barley, oats, horses, corn and wheat.

The Fremont area reported that floods and rains cut the tomato and sugar beet crops in half.

Floods along the Ohio river and Muskingum watershed last January although among the worst in the state's history, caused little crop damage.

Poultry raisers greeted an increase in prices and a decrease in food costs. However, many farmers sold poultry last spring because of the mounting cost of feed, said Falconer.

The university reported that poultry, pork and beef prices were not expected to advance much more and that increased demand made choice meat cuts comparatively much more expensive than ordinary cuts.

ALL 19 FOUND DEAD IN PLANE WRECKAGE

about 10:30 last night. They were pilot Ralph Johnson, three guides and myself. There were about 20 of us, mostly newspapermen, in a party that scrambled up to within a mile of the wreckage, when camp was established. The five of us continued on alone from there, in almost complete darkness, up the steep, snow-covered mountain side with only flashlights to help us.

"We spent more than an hour up there."

The great airliner had been missing since 8:16 p. m. (mountain time 10:16 eastern standard time) Sunday when it was enroute from Cheyenne, Wyo., to Salt Lake City.

It was first sighted from the air yesterday morning in the most difficult sort of terrain—it crashed at about the 10,000 foot level.

Johnson's searching party was aided towards dawn by an almost full moon, but the bitter cold made the going difficult.

The searchers struggled over precipitous cliffs and through deep slush up trailless Chalk peak, seeking the wreckage of the huge airliner which crashed in a storm Sunday night.

From the outset there had been virtually no hope that any of the occupants survived.

Air line officials refused to hazard an opinion as to definite cause of the crash other than to say it was attributable "in some degree to adverse weather and flying conditions."

Although the crash scene is only 10 minutes flight from Knight, Wyo., it will take rescue parties many hours to force their way into the rugged region, 26 miles south of that village.

No Trails

Except for the first 18 miles of crude wagon ruts threading out of Knight, there are no trails. From the end of the rough roads parties must work into the wild, deeply-crevaced region afoot or on horseback. Crews were working in from Knight and Evanston, Wyo., and Coalville, Utah.

The ground was covered with from 10 to 14 inches of slushy snow. Brush is heavy and matted. Searchers were further impeded by the altitude—the sleek, silver United Air Line's "mainliner" hurtled into a rocky ridge at 10,000 feet altitude.

At dawn, crews scrambled over steep ridges through mud and snow toward the wreckage. They had bivouacked during the cold night.

Associated Press reporter Otis J. Pusey, member of one of the search crews staying overnight at an isolated ranch, telephoned "the going is extremely rough."

Newspapermen who flew over the smashed plane yesterday saw no sign of life. They reported it was demolished — its wings sheared off, its two motors hurled 100 feet ahead of the telescoped cabin.

Last Report Sunday

The airliner, flown by Veteran Pilot Earl D. Woodgerd of Denver, made its last report to the Salt Lake City airport at 8:19 p. m. Sunday. Woodgerd said he was flying through broken clouds at 10,000 feet.

Three minutes earlier, as the plane passed over Rock Springs, Wyo., Woodgerd had radioed the United Air Lines office here:

"Slightly rough; all okay."

United Air Lines Pilot Bob Bergensen, who sighted the wrecked craft on a search flight, said it appeared that Woodgerd had attempted to return to Knight emergency field when he got into the center of the roaring storm. The westbound plane was flying east when it ploughed into the mountainside, he said.

Supervising the search was Major R. W. Schroeder, manager of United Air Line's operations. Postal authorities and bureau of air commerce officials also were pushing into the canyon-cut area.

Manning the "mainliner" with Pilot Woodgerd were Co-Pilot John Adams of Denver and Hostess Leah Derr of Salt Lake City.

Greatest previous death toll in United States airline history was at Goodwin, Ark., Jan. 14, 1936, when a transport plunged into a swamp, killing 17 persons.

Passengers Were To Make Safety Film

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—An ironic twist in the crash of the giant United Air Lines transport plane southwest of Evanston, Wyo., was disclosed today when it became known that two passengers on the skyliner were newsreel men filming a picture to be entitled "The Safety of Transcontinental Flying."

They were William Pitt, 31, newly appointed news editor of Pathe News, Inc., and James Pergola, 37, veteran Pathe News cameraman who filmed the Cuban revolution in 1933.

Pathe officials said the two men, both from New York City, had been assigned to complete a film depicting the history of air transport and the steady increase in safety devices which have made transcontinental flights rate high among the safest means of travel.

A third New Yorker on the plane was Dr. Louis Gross, one of the most distinguished heart pathologists in the east. He was director of the pathological laboratory at Mt. Sinai hospital. Last summer he received the medals of the American Medical association and the Canadian Medical association for his work in heart pathology.

PLACE OF TIMOTHY IN BIBLE DISCUSSED

Dr. G. C. Gast Addresses 77 at Lutheran Church Institute.

Timothy, son of a Greek father and a devout Jewish mother, was converted by Paul on the apostle's first missionary journey and became his constant companion or delegate to one of the churches, Dr. G. C. Gast, professor of New Testament at Capital university in Columbus, told 77 men and women at the session of the Marion Lutheran Sunday School Teachers' institute last night at the Emanuel Lutheran church.

The history of Timothy preceded discussion of Paul's letters, the first of which was to exhort Timothy to counteract the developing heresies at Ephesus and to instruct him in his duties of choosing proper officers for the church, the lecturer said.

Second Timothy, last of Paul's epistles, Dr. Gast pointed out, was written from Rome when the outlook was not promising. Paul expected to be put to death and his writing to Timothy was to urge him to come to Rome, giving him fatherly words on how to conduct himself and the affairs of the church in the event he, Paul, should die before Timothy arrived.

Next Monday night Dr. Gast will lecture on the books, Titus and Philemon. Four lectures will be given in November, beginning Tuesday Nov. 9, and continuing weekly through Nov. 30.

"The churches are full of people who want to be considered true Christians and yet who have the idea that they can compromise the issues involved," Rev. Paul Dobberstein of Prospect, chairman of the institute said in a devotional message on "The Savior's Letter to the Church at Pergamos." These people he termed "Nicolaitans," after the minority in the church in Pergamos who had as a motto, "Believe in Jesus Christ and then do as you please."

"Such ideas the Lord Jesus cannot tolerate," he said. "He wants clean-cut decision for Him and against sin."

3 COLLEGES IN OHIO TO INDUCT PREXIES

Marietta, Heidelberg, Kenyon Plan Ceremonies Wednesday and Saturday.

By The Associated Press

Three Ohio colleges prepared today to welcome alumni and visitors at ceremonies inducting new presidents into office this week.

Dr. Harry K. Eversull will become Marietta college's ninth president Wednesday. Dr. Clarence E. Josephson will take the reins at Heidelberg Saturday and Dr. Gordon Keith Chalmers will become the 16th head of Kenyon on the same day.

Dr. Frank Lissenden Eversull, president of Huron college of Huron, S. D., will give the presidential charge to his younger brother. Former Gov. George White, a member of the board of trustees, will deliver the college seal to the new Marietta president.

Nearly 200 colleges already had made reservations for their representatives in Heidelberg's Rickly chapel in Tiffin. Dr. Reinnold Niebuhr of Union Theological seminary, New York, was scheduled for the inaugural address.

The crowning of Miss Helen Schroeter, a senior from Cleveland, as student princess will be a feature of the homecoming celebration to follow a Heidelberg-Denison football game.

Kenyon's Dr. Chalmers is 38 years old and a former Rhodes scholar at Oxford university, England. His inauguration will be presided over by Rt. Rev. Henry Wise Hooson, D. D., Episcopal bishop of southern Ohio.

STOCKS RALLY AFTER $1 TO $15 TAILSPIN

hunters' among large investors were said to be in the market picking up stocks which they considered under-valued.

As shouting brokers hurled orders from trading post to trading post, the ticker tape fell nine minutes behind floor transactions. Many large blocks of stock appeared for sale in opening dealings.

Issues affected by the slump included some of the market's favorite bell wethers. American Telephone, once down $9, recovered to show a net loss of $6.50. Du Pont was down $7, Santa Fe was off $5., U. S. Steel, $4.50; Chrysler $3.50, Sears Roebuck $2 and Johns Manville $6.

Initial lots of 1,000 to 25,000 shares appeared on the ticker in necessitous selling following yesterday's break of $1 to $15 a share.

London, Paris and Amsterdam markets, which opened early because of the time difference, were lower, reflecting yesterday's New York slump.

The same conditions prevailed in the curb market. Niagara Hudson power traded at $4 a share on heavy volume, a dip of $3, or nearly 50 per cent.

In the bond market prices tended lower, with government bonds likewise down. They were the single resistant factor in yesterday's decline. Brokers said revised budget estimates were primarily responsible.

Most commodities sank, affected by the stock market break.

Cotton futures at one time dropped about 30 cents a bale, wheat broke as much as three cents a bushel, copper futures were off and scrap copper was reduced one cent a pound. Cocoa established new low prices for the season. "Stop loss" selling carried raw hides downward and coffee rubber and hogs sold off.

Volume was the heaviest on the decline since 1930, with around 2,000,000 shares changing hands in the first hour alone.

At the end of the first period the ticker was 12 minutes behind.

Clerks in Wall Street brokerage houses burned the midnight oil until the small hours sending out the heaviest volume of margin calls since July, 1933.

Action of the federal reserve bank in raising margin requirements to 55 per cent automatically shut out much speculation, and the high requirement staved off most of the "distress" selling until today.

But the constant decline in prices since mid August whittled accounts down to such a point that there was nothing for many to do but sell. Brokers asserted the slump had brought out a certain amount of money in new margin backing but many accounts could not raise sufficient funds and had to be closed out.

START EXCAVATION FOR NEW BUILDING

Operation of a steam shovel excavating for the basement of the new Montgomery Ward & Co. store on West Center street was begun this morning.

When the shovel completes the job of removing approximately 6,000 cubic yards of earth, digging to a depth of 16 feet in the rear of the site for the two-story building, it will still have to dig its way out of the basement. In doing this, it will excavate an incline and, as it reaches ground level, will fill the very hole which the incline has been dug.

Only a few men are now at work on the building site and the number will not be increased markedly until after the [illegible]

CHANCE FOR GOOD STEAK DINNER

Spring is in the air with new oddities of Dame Nature cropping up almost daily.

Latest of the pranks of nature and the weatherman is the report by Mrs. Edna Babcock of 168 Nye street of finding several large mushrooms this morning in the backyard of her home. The mushrooms are the variety found only in May, Mrs. Babcock said—that is, May of every year except 1937 when they come again in October.

● New things—new devices to lighten the work of the home—new foods to preserve the health of the family—new products to brighten the life of everyone—each day offers new merchandise to improve the living standards of all the people, in cities and on farms.

Bringing these things swiftly and economically by fast freight, express and mail, Chesapeake and Ohio is glad to contribute its share to the progress of the art of living in this community.

"The Railroad With a Heart"

—AMERICA AND THE LEAGUE—

U. S. Joins in Condemning Aggression

BY CHARLES NORMAN
Associated Press Writer

THE thunder of Japanese guns outside Mukden the night of Sept. 18, 1931, almost played a funeral march for the League of Nations.

To the league's failure to halt the Nipponese invasion of Manchuria and its subsequent inability to prevent the carving out of the puppet state of Manchukuo many observers have ascribed the wave of "international lawlessness" that followed, particularly the conquest of Ethiopia, the Spanish civil war, and piracy in the Mediterranean.

U. S. Acted in 1931

The United States, as a signatory of the nine-power treaty guaranteeing the territorial integrity of China, expressed concern in 1931, just as it was to do in the second Sino-Japanese crisis this year. In each case, the league denounced Japan's invasion, and in each case the United States concurred in the league's findings.

Since 1931, the American government has become directly concerned in four international disputes considered at Geneva—the Manchurian crisis; the Bolivia-Paraguay dispute over the Gran Chaco boundary, significant as the league from its inception. The next month, Prentiss Gilbert, American consul at Geneva, sat in on the council's deliberations as an observer and auditor.

On Dec. 10 the league council adopted a resolution which reaffirmed the resolution calling for cessation of hostilities and evacuation of occupied territory; invited information on events in Manchuria, and appointed a commision of five to study the situation on the spot.

On Dec. 11, Secretary Stimson issued an indorsement of the league's resolution, later declared the American government's position in a strong note to both China and Japan.

Resolution Passed

Nevertheless, in February, 1931, Japanese troops bombarded Shanghai. On March 11 the league assembly passed a resolution which supported Secretary Stimson's doctrine of non-recognition and opposed settlement of the first major dispute on the American continent to come before the league; the boundary dispute between Peru and Colombia in which the United States worked hand in hand with the league for a settlement; and the Italo-Ethiopian war in which America invoked its neutrality act.

On Sept. 21, 1931, China appealed to the league under the covenant and to the United States as a signatory of the nine-power treaty.

Stimson Backs League

On Sept. 24 Secretary of State Stimson addressed the league thus: "I assure you that the government of the United States is in whole-hearted sympathy as expressed in the council's resolution (which called for cessation of hostilities) and will dispatch to Japan and China notes along similar lines...."

It was the first direct communication from the United States, whose non-membership had been a major factor in the life of the dispute under military pressure.

The Lytton report exonerated China, declared Japan the aggressor, reaffirmed the doctrine of non-recognition and made recommendations for a settlement. The report was denounced by Japan, which took steps to resign from the league.

History repeated itself on Oct. 6, 1937, when the league assembly gave its moral support to China, condemned Japan and warned of possible international action unless the Japanese agreed to a peaceful Nine-Power settlement of her differences with China. Once more war flamed along the North China and Shanghai fronts.

And on Oct. 8 Secretary of State Cordell Hull, speaking for the United States, concurred in the league's condemnation of Japan.

In League circles hope ran high that the collaboration of the United States would present a solid front against aggressor nations.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

For seconding the league in applying moral pressure against Japan today, Secretary of State Hull (right) has a precedent in the 1931 action of his predecessor, Henry L. Stimson. They are shown together in 1933 when Stimson turned the job over to Hull.

A GOOD SIGN TO PAY ATTENTION TO SCHOOL SLOW DOWN

ABOUT ANYTHING

IN AND AROUND MARION

Beating a Pathway.

Fly traps are just as luring to the world as mouse traps, judging from the letters which D. J. Lawler, Marion grocer, has received since a novel fly trap which he invented was given wide newspaper publicity.

Among the many inquiries he has received is a letter from an Urbana woman who read a story about the fly trap in a Springfield paper.

"Am writing to ask you what you would charge for one of them," she explained. "We would pay the freight charges also, if you would kindly let us know. If you have them in different sizes we would like to have one that would be nice for a table or stand."

Magnetic Personality.

Speaking for electrifying women brings to mind one who flatly asserts that when she combs her hair the radio sounds as if a lightning storm were brewing. The young lady may have electricity on her mind more strongly than most, however, since she spends most of her time at the Marion-Reserve Power Co.

You Never Can Tell.

It is an axiom about the courthouse that "You never can tell what a jury will do" but in a recent trial most everyone was sure they knew what was to be the outcome. After deliberating in secret more than an hour, the jury sent for instructions on whether it had power to discriminate between two degrees of severity of the crime charged. The defense attorney was sure he had lost and the prosecutor was just about as certain of a conviction. The jury went back to its deliberations and came out a while later with an acquittal, much to the surprise of everyone, including the court officials.

Old Bets Unpaid.

Among bets, election and otherwise, that have not been paid are three in the office of County Auditor Harry V. Mounts. One deputy placed his faith in Landon last November and a result was to have pushed the winner in a wheelbarrow from Green Camp to the courthouse.

Another bet between County Dog Warden Elmer Ullom and two deputies that Mr. Ullom would not surpass his all time record of dog tags made last year is also not paid although the record was beaten several weeks ago. A $2.50 steak dinner was the consideration here.

HALT THAT COLD!

Put the Brakes on It Fast With This Four-Way Treatment!

No cold can be given an inch! The more rope you give a cold, the more you do to hang yourself!

No cold is a "light" cold. No cold can be ignored or neglected. The cold that is pooh-poohed today is the cold that takes a serious turn tomorrow.

Deal with a cold in a business-like manner. Treat it for what it is—an internal infection! Treat it with a cold medicine not a cure-all.

The Treatment That Answers!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets) are what you want for a cold!

They are expressly a cold treatment, and not a "cure-all."

They are internal medication.

Bromo Quinine tablets do four important things in the treatment of colds.

First, they open the bowels.

Second, they check the infection in the system.

Third, they relieve the headache and fever.

Fourth, they tone the system and help fortify against further attack.

Grove's Bromo Quinine tablets are nothing new or untried. They have been in use over 40 years and are the largest-selling cold tablet in the world.

That, in itself, is enough to assure you of their efficacy and dependability.

Bromo Quinine tablets now come sugar-coated as well as plain. Both kinds are sold by all druggists, a few cents a box.

Play Safe!

The moment you feel a cold coming on, do the wise thing. Go right to your druggist for a box of Bromo Quinine tablets. Read directions in tablets immediately and you will usually break up the cold in 24 hours. That's the speed of action you want.

Ask your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (LBQ tablets) and keep a box handy for the first sign of a cold.

TWO SUSPECTED OF TRAPPING RACCOON

Two West Side men suspected of trapping raccoon out of season were arrested by police last night shortly before 11 o'clock. The pair was taken into custody when officers became suspicious of a car parked on Indiana avenue. Police watched the automobile which was parked on a lonely section of the street and picked up the pair on investigation when they returned to it.

Traps, similar to those used in capturing raccoon, were found in the automobile, police said. O. H. Neimeyer of Prospect, state game protector, was called to Marion last night to assist police in the investigation to determine whether or not there had been a violation of the game laws. The men were being held at the city prison this morning while authorities continued their investigation.

EPISCOPALIANS TOLD TO ACT IN CRISES

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Oct. 19 — The general convention of the Protestant Episcopal church, in a message to its clergy and laity throughout the world, asserted today "the church must not sit quietly by when the world faces acute social and economic problems."

The pronouncement, contained in the triennial pastoral letter which will be read from hundreds of Episcopalian pulpits, said the church "is intensely concerned with those crises which bring misery and need to God's children," and added:

"Our hearts must be stirred in such a way that it will be our desire and passion to find jobs for the jobless, to carry hope to the hopeless, to assure relief to the oppressed and, in the words of the Oxford conference on life and work, 'to secure the best possible social and economic structure in so far as such structures and institutions are determined by human decisions.'"

CHRISTMAS PLANS MADE BY CIRCLE

A bazaar and bake sale some time in the Christmas season was discussed by members of the Circle of Love, formerly the Shining Cross circle, of the King's Daughters at a potluck supper meeting Thursday night with Virginia Sutton of 180 Franconia avenue. It was decided to sell Christmas cards to raise money for the circle's projects, and each member also will be expected to earn a dollar in another way. Mrs. J. W. Bradshaw, formerly Miss Betty Moore, was given a shower. Anna Margaret Leib was a guest.

full $9,600 for each department in view of records showing that retired members of both departments plus those who are eligible to retire would require $11,017.36 for the police pension fund and $11,085.36 for the firemen's pension fund in 1938. Although these figures represent the amount of annual pensions for all members of both departments eligible to retire, a number of men have preferred to work beyond the age and service requirements of their respective pension boards.

As a result of last night's action, the municipal operating budget for next year now totals $322,487.77, or $9,007 more than was sought in the budget prepared a year ago for 1937 and $50,539.77 more than the amount the county budget commission allowed the city for operating purposes in 1937.

Will Fix Sewer

In another matter before council last night, Mayor Smith assured Bernard Straw that attention would be given a sewer line under his basement at 145 Canby court which has been causing trouble for many years. Mr. Straw said his basement is flooded frequently and that the undermining by the sewer had caused his basement floor to settle.

Nov. 22 was set as the date for the newest appeal of Mrs. Hattie Gompf to have her property at the intersection of South State street and Delaware avenue transferred from the residential to the commercial zone of the city.

114 WORKERS TAKE FIELD IN Y DRIVE

the ideals of social and religious life, he said.

Billy Williams, a sixth grade pupil at the Greenwood school, spoke as a representative Y. M. C. A. boy, asking the workers, "What am I worth to you—I am an unknown citizen because my life lies in the unexplored future. We're trained in the Y to live clean, have clean minds and speech and in the proper use of leisure. The boys of today are the citizens of tomorrow. What am I worth to you?"

Charles H. Isaly, chairman of the special gifts committee, reported the pledges obtained by his group to date average increases of 32 per cent above last year's pledges.

Walter S. Hopkins, a representative of the national council of the Y, who is assisting in the drive, spoke briefly, outlining campaign procedure and instructions to workers. To reach the goal, each team must raise $250, each worker must get $75, he said.

Workers obtained lists of prospect cards at the close of the meeting, which was attended by 95 division leaders, captains and workers.

DELEGATES NAMED TO P.-T. A. MEETING

Mrs. H. C. Lautenslager, president, was named delegate and Mrs. B. H. Buettin was named alterate from the Vernon Heights Parent-Teacher association to the state convention this week in Cleveland when the association met last night at the school. Mrs. Lautenslager opened the meeting with a statement of objectives of the P.-T. A. for the year. Rev. H. C. Ahrens of the Salem Evangelical and Reformed church conducted devotions. The sum of $3 was voted to the expenses of the Mothersingers trip to the Cleveland meeting. Time of meetings was changed from the third to the fourth Monday of each month. A program included Hawaiian guitar numbers by Dorothy Martin, a piano selection of Naromi Garfield, harmonica numbers by Hedgar Halvardson, a piano number by Maxine Willoughby and an illustrated travel talk by Dr. O. M. Young. A social hour was in charge of Mrs. Walter McConnell, assisted by Mrs. C. E. Willoughby and Mrs. Eva Frost.

SIGHT ENDANGERED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Special to The Star

KENTON, Oct. 19—Frank Derr, an employe at the Hardin county infirmary, was so badly cut by flying glass that fear was felt today he would lose the sight of his left eye as result of a truck collision near Mt. Victory Sunday.

Derr and Ralph Baldwin, fireman at the infirmary, were enroute home after taking a family of Kentuckians back to their native state. Sideswiped by a passing truck which failed to stop, glass from the windshield of the car in which Derr and Baldwin were injured struck the left eye of Mr. Victory pulling the rear view mirror from its mounting. Another motorist passing at the time of the accident crashed through the left side of a parked car in front of the hospital. Two blankets and a coat from the seat were destroyed, Dr. G. F. Moench, attending physician, said. Derr was treated at the hospital and released. Baldwin received minor cuts on the face.

LAST FARM CHECK SET FOR THIS WEEK

Survey To Be Made for Soil Conservation Payments.

The second and final inspection of Marion county farms whose owners are participating in the 1937 soil conservation program of the federal government will get under way this week or the first part of next week, according to members of the county conservation committee working at the office of County Farm Agent S. L. Anderson. Committeeman Homer Kile estimated there will be 500 farms checked during the inspection.

In the initial performance check-up on some 1,300 farms in the county, only growing crops were tabulated. In this inspection, checkers will tabulate additional soil building practices such as liming, plowing under of soy beans acreages and other activities entered into by farmers since the first inspection. All participating farmers will be visited during this inspection, however, for their final approval of the original inspections, Mr. Kile stated.

From figures obtained by checkers, summaries will be made for each farm and sent to the state soil conservation office at Columbus for computation of benefits. Checks in payment to farmers are not expected before December.

The visit will be the first to be paid by Mr. Herman as head of the state organization and will mark the initial "pep" meeting of teams in the newly-launched membership drive sponsored by the aerie, in which it is hoped to double the year's quota of 120 members, reached in a drive closed recently. Members of the Victory team, challengers in the drive just closed, will serve a lunch following the pep meeting. The new drive is being conducted in the form of a football league.

Mr. Herman is widely known in lodge circles throughout the state, having filled the chairs in the state organization during the last few years. He was elected state president at the annual state convention held last June at Cleveland.

NO DEMOCRATIC government will be able to resist the temptation of dictatorship in another major war. Theorists have that for granted.

Representative government, which is what Americans suppose President Roosevelt means when he talks about saving modern democracy, is least satisfactory during wartime, when survival necessitates suspension of reason and freedom.

The United States suspended representative democracy during the World war to some degree. Plans now in existence call for much more complete suspension in event of another war.

There would be, to come to the point directly, some kind of dictatorship for the duration of the war, and probably afterward. In all probability, the opponent would be a dictatorship, and to fight it on even terms would entail the same swift, arbitrary action which is the characteristic of dictatorial government.

Of course, it wouldn't be called dictatorship. Japan, which finally has quit pretending to give the people a voice in national affairs, has decided to call its dictatorship a supreme war council. In the United States, it probably would be called an advisory board, but the margin of difference between it and a dictatorial government would be too narrow to make any difference.

Brotherhood

REPORTS by organizers that United Federal Workers of America, the C.I.O. union for federal jobholders, is coming along nicely bring to mind a peculiar fact about public jobholders.

Traditionally, the public is hostile to them when they try to boost their pay or hold on to their jobs in defiance of a retrenchment program. This is because taxpayers as a class are convinced that public jobholders have a soft snap anyway and need to be dealt with harshly.

Obviously, if they become organized, they will want more pay and more security in their jobs. They will ask for support from all taxpayers who believe in labor organization, on a brotherhood basis. Whether they will get support or not will depend on which brotherhood is stronger, the loose brotherhood of men who pay taxes, or the tight brotherhood of men who pay dues. This should be an enlightening test case of human behavior when the time comes.

More Eminent Liberals.

AN ANTI-LYNCHING bill's on the congressional schedule, jammed right in behind the farm legislation which congressmen promised to pass if Mr. Roosevelt would let them off easy last August.

This should be a lot of fun.

Some of the scurrying fakes who were yelping a few weeks ago that a Ku Kluxer in Alabama was no different than a Rotarian or a Kiwanian in Ohio are going to have a chance to eat their words.

They call themselves liberals. They have been clouting southern congressmen for years for resisting the attempt to make the federal government responsible for cleaning up the south's smelly lynching problem.

Lynching and Ku Kluxing are two sides of the same thing. No one doubts that a lot of southern politicians are Klansmen. No one doubts, either, that lynching disturbs them about as much as gambling disturbs a politician in Ohio.

Therefore, when the southern die-hards line up to shout that the south will not submit to intervention in the lynching problem, there's just one thing for the Black watch to say. 'These men are liberal. These men may be Klansmen, but they're liberal. They're gentlemen and judges of fine horses. And they're liberal. Gosh, they got to be liberals, or we're monkeys''

It's A Great World.

MAYBE THE trouble is that the world has mislaid its sense of humor. Too many serious brothers and sisters are in no immediate danger of being made ridiculous by a snicker.

Still, occasionally, someone does snicker. For instance, in 57 cities a best selling book at the moment tells how to lose friends and make other people mad at you. The President of the United States and members of his cabinet have just been lampooned in a musical comedy. The Duke of Windsor and his bride are bidding for headlines and getting them by studying housing conditions, of all things. And Premier Mussolini, who must have a sprightly sense of humor somewhere behind that theatrical scowl, says he will order "some" of Italy's "volunteers" to withdraw "partially" from Spain.

And if that isn't a roar, what is?

It's difficult to conjecture just who has the chief cause for anxiety in that Cincinnati murder trial—the defendant or the lone man sitting on the jury with 11 of the opposite sex.

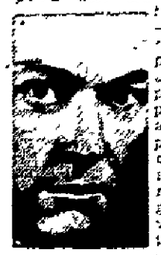
Today And Tomorrow

Despite World's Long Experience with Business Recessions No One Really Knows Cause.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

NEW YORK, Oct. 19 — At a time like this, when nobody fully understands the behavior of the stock markets or can judge the prospects of business, the natural thing to do is to look around for a scapegoat.

Almost every one I know supposed that unsound conditions here and abroad—such as the crushing load of productive debt and the vast unproductive expenditures of armaments and public works connected with inflationary financing in every great nation—would lead not to a sudden collapse but to a dangerous rise in prices. For that reason no one is in a position to discuss the situation on the assumption that he foresaw the event and said so.



Walter Lippman

The fundamental fact of the matter is that there does not exist any dependable scientific knowledge of the business cycle. The whole subject is still obscure, the data have never been fully ascertained and the theory is still very much unsettled. In the study on "Prosperity and Depression" just made for the League of Nations by Professor Gottfried von Harberler of Harvard University, 158 pages are required in order to summarize the divergent theories held by reputable and competent economists. We are obviously moving in a region, therefore, where nobody knows clearly what he is talking about, in a region not yet brought securely within the frontiers of human knowledge.

But the matter is complicated further by the fact that the economic process, which no one understands, very well, is today in every part of the world subject to the management of politicians, mystics, demagogues, prophets and soldiers, who do not understand it at all. In the nineteenth century, although no one knew much about the business cycle, recovery used to come after a while because nobody interfered with it. But nowadays nearly every government has taken charge of its own sector of the economic system, and what we are experiencing is neither a natural recovery nor an administered recovery, but a bad combination of the two.

No one knows what these providential governments are going to do next because they themselves do not know. They live on a twenty-four hour basis, with one eye on the stock market, another on a few dubious statistics, with their hand on what they call the public pulse and their ears to the ground. Under these conditions private initiative is, of course, paralyzed since no man knows what the government will demand of him tomorrow, and government initiative is paralyzed because the government does not know from day to day what it is going to impose the people with.

What Is True Consensus

It may well be that the consensus of opinion in the stock markets of the world is truer than the opinions of any individual trading in them or commenting upon them. What these markets seem to say is that the whole recovery of the past two years at any rate was incremental and improvement, that it represented not a true revival of the production of goods for exchange but a governmental boom, subsidized by paper money, and devoted to armaments, public works and relief.

They seem to say that here and abroad for one reason and another, a genuine recovery beyond the levels of 1935 has been prevented. The stock markets seem, in other words, to be responding not to the mechanical effects of monetary inflation but to be reflecting the realistic judgment of business men on the prospects of private business.

It would appear as if men as men still had within themselves all the energies that have in the past caused them to work, to save, and to be enterprising, but that those energies are throttled, not merely in Washington, but almost everywhere in the world. In the totalitarian states everything is, of course, at the service of the military there is virtually no capitalism left. In France and in the United States to a much lesser degree in Britain, the capitalist system is paralyzed at its core by the fact that the party in power is hostile to that system. We are trying to operate a capitalist system under a government which dislikes the system, and would, if it had the courage and the power, replace it by the collectivist system.

This inner conflict between the nature of free capitalism and the real purposes of the government has created a deadlock. Business cannot proceed because it is terrorized by the new dealers; the new dealers cannot proceed because, being only half-hearted collectivists, they do not dare to follow out the logic of their own ideas. What the new dealers would like is to have very prosperous business which they could milk in order to provide the subsidies upon which their political power is founded. They would like, so to speak, to have capitalism finance its own gradual extinction.

That they cannot have. If they want a prosperous capitalism, they will have to give business the security under which it can prosper, if they want collectivism, they must be prepared to face the grim fact that, once they have made the choice capitalism will not go on imperturbably producing wealth for them, but will become paralyzed and will stagnate. They can move into collectivism only through a severe depression and a great social crisis. They

Last January's Estimated Treasury Balance Turns Into Deficit and Heads Toward Billion.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—There are two ways of looking at the budget figures just issued by President Roosevelt—each of them leading to opposite conclusions.

One way to appraise the figures is to say that, since the federal government cuts its deficit from about $2,700,000,000 last year down to $700,000,000 for the present fiscal year, ending June 30 next, this is substantial progress and the right trend.

The other way to evaluate the President's announcement is to lay stress on the fact that, last January, the prediction was for a surplus of $37,000,000, and, last April, this was revised to an expected surplus of $37,000,000, and, last April, this was revised to an expected deficit of $418,000,000, and now in October, the deficit is revised still further, indicating around $700,000,000 as the expected result by the end of next June.

Either analysis is logical, but what the country doesn't know about these figures is that, next March, there will have to be a further revision of the estimated deficit to take into account the certain falling off in tax receipts to bad business in the third and fourth quarters of 1937 and also to the probable additions to federal expenses which will have been made by the special and regular sessions of congress.

But in the deficit finally winds up at $1,000,000,000 next June, this would be quite an improvement over the $2,700,000,000 deficit of the fiscal year which ended last June and many observers would be gratified because the trend would be substantially downward.

What the public little realizes, however, is that the method of cutting the deficit is a most unhealthy one. Expenses aren't being reduced at all in fact, the President's latest figures show they are very much higher for the current fiscal year than he thought last January or last April that they would be by now.

These increases in expense are dangerous fiscally speaking, because the federal government cannot hope to continue to collect such big tax receipts as it is now gathering. The American people, for instance will be contributing during this fiscal year more than $1,000,000,000 in social security taxes on payrolls. Theoretically this money goes into a trust fund but the government is obliged by act of congress to invest the funds in its own bonds bearing 3½ per cent interest. So in effect the government issues bonds to a trust fund set up by the treasury bookkeepers here and takes the proceeds from the sale of these bonds—the social security cash—and puts it into the general receipts of the government as revenue received.

So social security money acts like any other general tax receipt to swell the intake inasmuch as all the budget balances are figured out on a simple basis of outgo and income.

It is assumed, of course, that when the government has to pay out social security expenses and awards, the quota will be classified as an expense. Nevertheless the federal government does have the use for several years of reserve funds which will not be needed for outgo right away.

The interesting thing about the President's figures is the confession that actual tax receipts are $236,000,000 behind the estimates. This is due to the erratic calculating done by the overenthusiastic new dealers in the treasury who let their arithmetic get away with them when they estimated the undistributed surplus tax and sold Mr. Roosevelt the worst gold brick he has ever had handed him.

Little by little the truth comes out as to why such big errors in calculation are made but unfortunately it takes a year or so to make the corrections in order to get other receipts as a substitute for the miscalculated items.

The dangerous aspect of the whole situation is that federal expenses are not going down, that the tax burden on the whole economic structure is being imposed in such ruthless fashion as to throw the price system out of balance and finally that there is an impression created of lack of control by the new deal of the fiscal problem.

If the President can wind up with only $1,000,000,000 deficit by next June, he will earn the praise of his fellow citizens hereabouts because that would be real progress, relatively speaking, but the inescapable truth is that few experts here think he can keep it down even to that figure.

Dinner Stories

A good story concerns Herr Remarque, the author of "All Quiet on the Western Front," and a pretty American girl to whom he was introduced in Berlin.

The American, speaking in German asked Remarque why he had never visited the United States. His answer was that he knew only a few sentences in English.

Whereupon Remarque, speaking slowly in somewhat guttural English, said: "How do you do? I love you. Forgive me. Forget me. Hand and eggs, please."

"Sakes alive!" ejaculated the girl. "Why, with that vocabulary you could buy my country from Maine to California."—Troy (N. Y.) Record.

Aerial War Expensive

Some Experts Say Gassing a City Is Too Costly To Be Worthwhile from Military Standpoint.

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—Don't worry so much. There's been a lot of talk about cities being wiped out by gas attacks in the "next war," but there's another side to that story.

Authorities have computed for us that the cost of gassing all the population of a city or harassing it to the point of driving the residents out would be so great in terms of money, equipment and time that it would not be worthwhile as a military objective.

Hair-raising pictures have been painted by imaginative souls of the devastation which might be inflicted on a city by an attack of several hundred planes.

But it must be understood that planes can not safely spray defended cities as they do weevil-infested cotton fields. The job must be done from altitudes of 6,000 to 12,000 feet. Anti-aircraft guns with modern automatic sights are so accurate that low-flying planes might be brought down like ducks over a swamp.

It Could Be Done.

True enough, a cluster of planes dropping explosive bombs or gas bombs can raise Old Nick in spots. They can damage or temporarily paralyze individual factories or railroad yards. But the figures indicate that no one nation owns enough planes to paralyze a large city in a single assault provided there is any worthwhile defense. And any city worth devastating by the enemy likely would be well defended by the home troops of a first line nation like the United States.

Here are some of the factors which support such conclusions:

Field calculations call for 4,650 mustard gas bombs to provide an "effective" concentration of gas on a square mile in open country. Our authorities say double this amount would be required in cities where many bombs, striking on roofs, would be virtually wasted. The gas would fritter away in the sun and wind too high up to reach the populace.

Standard army bombing planes can carry 20 mustard gas bombs, so a fleet of 465 planes would be required to plaster a square mile of a city with mustard gas—if it was to be done all at once. The cost of these bombs alone, at $16.17 each, would be $150,381 a square mile. Cost of planes to carry the bombs is not included in that figure. Any shot down—and some assuredly would be—would add to the cost.

Calculate then the task of thus gassing New York with mustard gas. The city spreads over 320 square miles.

But It's Not Likely.

Now mustard gas does not have to be put down all at once. It is a "persistent" gas that will remain effective from three days to a week, and longer in soft ground or in protected spots where wind and air may not reach it effectively.

Mustard gas actually is a sort of oily spray, lingering where it is dropped, and blistering all who touch contaminated objects or come within range of its vapor. Because of its persistence, mustard gas can be laid down a patch at a time, so a single enemy air fleet could make repeated trips if it had a nearby base. But calculate the trips necessary to soak 320 square miles of New York at 465 plane loads a square mile.

Other gases are less persistent. Phosgene, ranked with mustard as one of the "successful" gases, loses its effectiveness in the air in 10 to 15 minutes, so if a city is to be wiped out with it, the whole job must be done in two or three minutes.

For gassing a city area with phosgene, 3,628 large bombs per square mile are estimated as necessary. That takes 181 planes per square mile or 57,920 bombing planes to gas New York City's 320 miles. Probably there are not that many bombers in the world.

And another thing, gas hugs the ground, so people in third story rooms are safe and partly protected in the second story with windows closed.

Frequently I pay toll on the Washington bridge and the one leading to the Hudson parkway. The attendants are efficient on both structures and I find no cause for plaint. Yet not once have I seen one smile for a cheery salutation. The contrast forced home the other morning at a toll in a neighboring state. The attendant not had a smile, but sent us on our way with "you have a fine day, sir." One wonders New York has a way of squeezing out sort of cordiality!

There used to be certain spots too where stranger at New York's gates could not often see a face he recognized or now and then some one from home. Particularly was this of the block-long corridor of the old Waldorf Peacock Alley. My wife and I used to meet there when I came uptown from the news office on Park Row, and we luxuriated in the deep cushioned divans an hour or so—rarely failing to see some celebrity of headline importance. I had my first glimpse of Irvin Cobb there. His famous story, "The Belled Buzzard," had just appeared that week and no one ever before or since took on such mighty literary stature in my eyes.

From that crack reporter, John McClain, I learns the art of sail making survives. Nature its artisans have thinned to a handful and the left are of venerable years. Their output is confined solely to private vessels and the sail lofts are mostly on South street, along the water front. All belong to the Sail Maker Union, one of the oldest in the country. And that sailing is not lost to this generation is proved by the large number of youngsters who toddle to the Central Park lakes and ponds on seasonable days with their toy boats. It leads in all park recreations for the young—topping roller skating.

I am somewhat awed by those brash blondes who greet a pretty cigaret or hat check girl I never met, with a chuck under the chin and a "Hi Toots!" Also I have an itch, in the manner of Charles McCarthy, to mow them down. So I was heartened in a restaurant last night when one of the fresh-every-hour boys breezed over, pinched the cheek of the hat check girl and inquired, "How's my sweetie pie?" to see what happened. Blood seemed suddenly to run out of her cheeks and she stood a trembling picture of white faced fury. Then with the spring of a tiger she slapped both his cheeks, stamped on his hat, picked it up and walked to the door and threw it toward the gutter. Afterward, in true feminine fashion, she retrieved her cloak room for a good cry. But she had had her moment—and it was a dandy. She didn't lose her job, either.

Marriage Meddlers

BY ADELE GARRISON

Philip Agrees to Let Noel Drive Mary to the Farm.

UNDER Philip Ventnor's steady attentive gaze my voice trailed away ignominiously at the end of my suggestion to him not to draw the reins too tightly over Mary and Noel.

'What do you advise' he asked, and there was more than a suspicion of irony in his tones "That I keep Mary here until rehearsals actually commence'

Had I overstepped myself? I wondered frantically Had I thwarted my own plan for giving Mary an intensive grind in the role the great producer had given her, and which I was sure he meant to take from her before the rehearsals should be very far advanced?

Oh, no I don't mean that at all,' I said "I think, with you, that she ought to get away from her husband as soon as possible before rehearsals But—" I hesitated

'But what?' he demanded. Believe me, I am very anxious to hear what you have to say.

I took my courage in both hands with a silent plea to my partner for just that luck favor me

'I think it would be a marvelous gesture on your part," I said, "if you asked Noel to drive Mary down to the farm on whatever day you wish her to come to us

"It would go far toward convincing them that you had no personal issue in your plans for Mary, and, I think, make them more cheerfully acquiescent."

For a second I thought that I had failed His brows were drawn together in a portentous frown, and he was looking downward, not at me Then his brows unknitted themselves and he looked directly at me with just the suggestion of a twinkle in his eyes

"You are an inscrutable person, my Dear,' he said 'I do not know whether you really believe what you are saying, or whether you are actuated by a desire—conscious or sub-conscious—to give Mary and Noel a romantic interlude before they are separated for so long"

I brought out every bit of histrionism I possessed and made my eyes and voice dolorous

'I am sorry you misjudge me so," I said plaintively, 'But, of course, with your knowledge of my affection for Mary, you can't help but think—"

'Oh, please" he said in horrified accents that were most convincing, whether genuine or not. 'I am so sorry I said anything to grieve you "Won't you please consider it unsaid"

'Of course," I assured him, and he drew a deep breath apparently of relief

'Will tomorrow be too soon for Mary to come to you' he asked abruptly.

"No, indeed' I told him. 'Any time at all

"Then I shall send Noel down with her tomorrow," he said, his prompt capitulation surprising me. Then he added, with an impressively lifted forefinger, "On one condition'

"And that is" I asked

'That he start back as soon as he is sufficiently rested to make the return journey."

"Of course," I promised, pledging myself silently to stretch 'sufficiently rested' as far as possible.

Noel Is Needed

'I need Noel here, badly," Noel's father went on, 'and he himself should be most anxious to return. I am having some changes made in the score of his operetta—it will not affect your libretto materially—and Princess Olina, a most accomplished musician, is of the greatest assistance to him.

Unfortunately, Mary is not a musician so that her presence here is only a distraction to Noel. It will be better for both their careers if they are temporarily separated

For a horrified instant I thought I had hurled the epithet, 'You brutish old spider" into Philip Ventnor's face Then I realized that I had thought it, and only by myself with an effort to hear what he would say next.

THE CHARACTERS

Nina, a nice girl with flaxen hair, has fallen in love with her stepfather.

Richard, the charming, well-tailored stepfather, pays considerable attention to Nina.

Money, Nina's gay, plump, youthful mother, is crazy about her new husband.

David, a young auto salesman, has begun to adore Nina.

Cordelia is Nina's closest friend.

CHAPTER 14

David's Proposal

THE second horse—which was the dreaded Worthington creature's—fell also, but while its rider was thrown clear, Nina was pinned under the two animals in a tangle of reins, stirrups, and eight widly kicking black hoofs.

Twice, Gray Dawn struggled up a little, but could get no foothold on the hard, frosty surface of the road, and fell back again... knocking the breath clean out of her mistress's body. Nina's right leg was twisted behind her into an unbearable position and a weight like the rock of Gibraltar was resting on her left.

The sky overhead was segmented by what seemed, to her tortured eyes, a thousand waving legs; and over and above the grunting of the animals, a rushing sound was filling her head, like the overflowing of a mighty river.

Gradually her legs ceased to ache, and the sky above became overcast by a great dark cloud. ...In a detached sort of way, she wondered if she were dying.

"Hey! Careful there. . . You'll get kicked to death!" Through the whirring noises came Lilith's voice, harshly frantic. Dear, sweet Lilith, she'd turned back.

And another voice: "What the hell... are you going to let her lie there?"

And now Nina was quite sure she was delirious, if not actually at death's door.

The voice she heard was David's.

"You damn fool! They'll quiet in a second. . . ."

And David's taunting: "Oh, yeah? . . . Coming, Nina! Hold everything, darling. I'll get you out!"

Into the blackening sky came David's copper head. . . His brown eyes, with a mad, terrified light in them. . . His arms reaching down to her. . .

She was beyond trying to reason it all out, why he should be here. . . but she made an effort to gasp "Don't" before the dark closed in. She thought she heard a cry of pain, and hoped, frantically, that it was she, not David. But she could not be sure.

'Nina You've GOT TO!'

Nina opened her eyes and discovered that she was in the bottom of a station wagon. The back seats had been removed, and they were progressing at snail's pace. She could see the legs of two horses and two riders, one on either side. Carl was one, and as she turned her head to see who was the other . . . she looked straight into the troubled brown eyes of David Day, lying on a pile of coats, beside her.

"David!. . . So it was you!"

"Nina—angel—are you all right?"

"The funny thing is, I think I am. . . . practically. But you, you crazy lamb, you happen to be here? What happened?"

His nice face was glowing with relief.

"Nothing. The very efficient young lady on your right, got them up. I only succeeded in getting myself knocked out, so that there were two of us to rescue instead of one. . . . Great little helper, David."

"Great little helper."

"Don't be two nice to me, darling. I'm unstrung. And speak quietly," he was whispering, "I don't want them to hear us till I've proposed marriage. . . . . Darling Nina, I'm so crazily, madly in love with you. Sweetheart, I only make 50, or at the best 60 dollars a week. . .could you? On that? I was delivering a car. Remember I said I'd try and catch a glimpse of you? Well suddenly, you all tore out in front of me, and when I saw you go down, and thought you were being smashed to a pulp. . . . Nina, you've got to!"

He was incoherent and—dear. He was pale and breathless, and a tiny trickle of blood oozed from his temple.

Nina. . . ."

"David—dear. Could we stop talking, just for now? My head is whirling." He looked instantly contrite. "But, David, if you would just lean over and kiss me. : . "

He winced with pain as he lifted himself on his elbow and bent over her...but when he drew away again, he was the happiest looking person in the world.

"I know," he whispered, against her cold little hand, "you didn't mean it. You're not committing yourself to anything. I'm not to take it seriously; and we'll talk of this again later. . . but oh, my God, Nina . . if you only knew what that did to me!"

He sank back onto his pile of coats with a sigh.

In a minute he looked out over the side of the car with a sublimely innocent expression on his face, and told Lilith that it was all right. Nina had come to at last. . . . But in the meanwhile Nina had done some tall thinking about that kiss.

She remembered hoping, in New York that night, that when he did kiss her, it would be something tremendous. . . . Well, in a way, it had, . . . only something reassuring and peaceful, instead of something—exhilarating. Although she didn't actually form the words, she had the feeling: "I have David," and life seemed steadier because of it, and she wished he would lean over and kiss her again.

They were driven back to Harmony, and—after a thorough examination had proved that nothing was broken or otherwise seriously injured—they were ensconced on two leather couches coming out at right angles from the fireplace in Carl's library.

Nina's legs went one way, and David's the other so that they faced each other. . . a little pale and shaken, but beginning to have fun. A bright log fire burned in the hearth, and some rare old Napoleon brandy began to do things to their color.

David Fits In Easily

"I've made arrangements to have my man deliver the car to your customer for you, Day," said Carl, genially, "and I sent along a note explaining what had happened. . . . I'm expecting some people along presently, but while we're still alone, I want to thank you for your. . . ."

"Attempt at heroism, eh? Listen, Mr. Semple, I'm ashamed of myself. Forget it, will you. I'm the one who should be grateful."

Carl beamed at him, and Nina could see that he approved of his young guest.

Their slight aches and pains, he treated more lightly. They were all part of the day's work, he figured. Having broken a good many bones himself, and hunted with them before they were well-knit together, a few strained ligaments more or less, meant nothing to him. . . Nothing, that, is unless it happened to one of his horses. Then it was another story.

Hester, on the other hand, had looked like death when they carried Nina in. She couldn't do enough for them, and when she finally went away with her liniments and bandages they were both relieved.

Lilith came in then, with a slap on the shoulder for David, and a kidding word, and presently others drifted in, still in their riding habits, for some of Carl's famous grog.

But it was Hester, Nina noticed, who saw that David met all the guests—there were about 14 in all that each of them got food and drink: that the cold were warmed, and the wet dried. She moved among that booted, mud-spattered crowd, like a calm, ministering angel. And suddenly Nina felt a rush of sympathy toward her, for she noticed that they paid her scant, or no attention, at all.

All eyes were on Carl, spare and handsome in his hunting pink, standing with his back to the crackling logs, and going over the day's run, as though they had none of them taken any part of in it.

David was drinking in his surroundings, as though he were at the theater. Nina could see that he was fascinated and a little amused.

When somebody asked Carl: "What do you think of old Worthy's wife. . . ?" referring to the thrusting woman rider who had caused Nina's accident.

And Carl said: "Well she's a good seat, but . . ."

David looked at Nina; and murmured: "Really!" in a shocked aside.

He was having a marvelous time.

Nina was surprised at the easy way he fitted in. She felt disloyal to be surprised. . . but after all his background was so vague, and he was so poor and all. . . She only knew that he had been born in Syracuse and attended public school there, that he had gone to work immediately, and then come to his selling job in New York a little over a year ago on the recommendation of a business friend of his father's.

Now, he evidently had a capacity for hard work, and he most certainly was a dear. . .but that didn't necessarily imply an aptitude for fitting into luxurious surroundings of this sort.

Tomorrow, Aunt Carrie upsets Nina with some firm advice.

Opening of Three-Day Gasco Event Draws Crowds to Star Auditorium.

A large crowd witnessed the first program this afternoon of the three-day Gasco food institute being held at The Star auditorium under auspices of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. All sessions start at 2 p. m.

After preliminary introduction the program was turned over to Miss Mary Brown, special food lecturer who took charge of all demonstrations. She was assisted by Miss Pauline Schofield, home service representative of the company in Marion.

Today, designated as "get acquainted day," Miss Brown demonstrated the making of peach mousse, savory rice, egg nog pie, an oven dinner, piquant beets, baked green beans in tomato sauce and French fruit pudding.

Wednesday's presentation entitled "On Trial," will be a dramatic playet of the kitchen.

On Thursday, the closing day, Dr. Roy A. Burkhart, Columbus lecturer and author, will discuss "Achieving Happiness in the Home." An address by Dr. Burkhart was one of highlights of the institute last year.

THE 70TH O. V. I.

The 70th Ohio Volunteers infantry during the Civil war had an unique record among the regiments sent by Ohio. No person held a command in it during its four years of service who was not a member of the regiment when it left Ohio for the front. Usually vacancies among the officers must be filled from outside sources, but so resourceful was this regiment that it was not necessary.

Gov. Dennison gave Col. Joseph R. Cockerill authority to recruit the regiment, which he did at West Union on Oct. 14, 1861. In a few days 400 men had volunteered and they drilled a month without arms, due to the state and federal governments lacking equipment.

Gen. Sherman, under whom the regiment fought, spoke with praise of the regiment's conduct.

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Cause of Boils

AT A RECENT intercollegiate regatta a friend of mine visited the quarters of the competing crews. All of these lads were over six feet in height and appeared to possess the very essence of good health. Yet, several were afflicted with that annoying complaint known as boils.

At one time this affliction was believed to be due to poor blood and anemia. These athletes were certainly not victims of anemia, quite the opposite. As a matter of fact, the old theory has been exploded. It is now known that boils and some other infections of the skin are caused by a germ called the "staphylococcus aureus."

This germ is found everywhere. It enters the skin through an abrasion or inflamed area. It is rubbed into the surface by friction and pressure. Soiled clothes and dirty hands carry the germ and may be responsible for boils.

It is wise that cleanliness be practiced both in person and clothing, because of germs of unpleasant ailments thrive in unsanitary places.

It is true that skin infections, such as boils and carbuncles, are often traced to a lowered resistance of the body. Persons who are deprived of fresh air, sunshine and nourishing foods are extremely susceptible to such disturbances. Occasionally they can be traced to a center of infection somewhere, perhaps in the teeth or tonsils.

An attack of boils may be a sign of constitutional disorder. It may be the first warning that the sugar content in the system is excessive. This always demands a thorough examination, including a urinalysis. In any event, make sure there is no diabetic condition if a crop of boils appears.

Young adults who are fond of fried foods, rich desserts, sweets, pickles and spices sometimes suffer from boils. Correction of the diet and exposure to fresh air and sunshine will help in such cases.

The favorite location for these "comforters" are the back of the neck, armpits, buttocks, thighs and groins. They may be small and numerous in some cases. In another, a boil may be so large and painful as to incapacitate the sufferer and even confine him to bed.

A boil should never be squeezed. There is great danger in doing this. Unscientific handling of a boil may lead to the spread of the infection.

If you are a victim of boils, make sure that your diet is varied and includes the essential foods. It should be simple and contain an abundance of fresh fruits, vegetables and foods rich in minerals and vitamins.
